

CITY DIVIDED INTO SECTIONS BY WOMEN FOR CHINESE DRIVE

Church Women Divide Maysville Into Districts and on Friday and Saturday Will Sell Chinese Relief Fund Stamps.

The officers and members of the Misionary Societies of the various local churches have divided Maysville into districts and each society has become responsible for canvassing the homes in a separate district on next Friday and Saturday, which days have been selected by them for a canvass to sell stamps for the relief of the starving in China.

Already Maysville and Mason county have made a contribution to this fund but the contribution has been a very small one and the women of the churches are hoping to be enabled to considerably increase that fund by what they are enabled to raise through the sale of these relief stamps this week.

The stamps are sold for three cents each and there is not a person in Maysville who cannot afford to buy a few of the stamps. Each stamp purchased represents the saving of one life for one whole day and one could not do a more noble thing than to assist in keeping the starving thousands in China alive until their harvest which is counted on to relieve the terrible conditions now prevailing in that famine stricken land of North China.

Besides the house-to-house canvass to be made by the church women, there will be stamps offered for sale in the local stores and banks on next Saturday. Committees of young ladies will be stationed at all of the centrally located places of business to offer these stamps for sale and they will be sold in any quantity.

It is learned that the Police Committee cannot make its report to Council on its finding in the recent police department investigation except at a regular meeting of Council. The next regular meeting will be on the first Monday in June and until that time Officer P. Ryan will stand temporarily suspended.

The Lewis Circuit Court is in session at Vanceburg and several local attorneys have important cases at that bar for this term. The Lewis county grand jury is now investigating and it is understood that body has considerable business before it.

Saturday's trial promises to be one of the most interesting trials held in Maysville for a time for the entire city and county is interested in the final outcome. The case has been narrowed down to the matter of the State Health Board endeavoring to force the water company to install a filtration plant in this city.

LEGION OFFICERS ARE WELCOMED HERE BY THE LOCAL POST

Leslie H. Arthur Post American Legion Gives Luncheon This Evening In Honor of State Officials On Trip Through State.

Leslie H. Arthur Post American Legion entertains this evening at their rooms in Sutton street in honor of the state American Legion officers who arrive here late Wednesday afternoon to spend the evening with the local post.

They will leave Thursday morning for Flemingsburg where they will inspect the Flemingsburg post and address a meeting of ex-service men.

All members of the local post are urged to be in attendance at the meeting this evening for these state officers will have something to say that will interest every ex-service man and especially those who are interested in the success of their organization—The American Legion.

At other points throughout the state where these officers have stopped on this tour, they have been met by large crowds and they have been telling the Legion men some things that they need to know about their own welfare. They are strong in their denunciation of those laws which are now proposed and which are opposed to the best interests of the former service men and loud in their praise of the laws which have the endorsement of the organization.

This is the first time Maysville has been honored by a visit from the state officials of the American Legion and the members of the local post have made arrangements to make a lasting impression upon them and leave them with a determination to come back to Maysville 'n the near future.

FRANKLIN K. LANE DIES SUDDENLY; CHIEF JUSTICE NEAR DEATH

Former Secretary of the Interior Dies Suddenly Wednesday Morning—Chief Justice White.

Near Death.

Rochester, Minn., May 18.—Franklin K. Lane, former Secretary of the Interior, died suddenly at a local hospital here early this morning. Death was due to an attack of angina pectoris.

Mr. Lane was operated on here May 6 for gall stones and appendicitis, and was said to be recovering, when heart disease, from which he had suffered from time to time in the last eight months, developed. Immediately after he had recovered from the influences of the anesthetic Mr. Lane said: "I am surprised to be alive. I hope to be able to live a long life, doing good things forever."

Mr. Lane left no estate.

It was often said of Mr. Lane that if he had been born in the United States instead of Canada he would have been presidential timber. After serving seven years in President Wilson's Cabinet as Secretary of the Interior, he resigned his $12,000 a year post in expensive Washington early in 1920 "to Justice to his family," to become vice president and legal advisor of the Mexican petroleum companies controlled by Edward L. Doheny.

Washington, May 18.—Edward D. White, chief justice of the Supreme Court, is "no better." It was announced today at Garfield Hospital.

White was unconscious. His death was expected momentarily.

White suffered a relapse after an operation.

He sank so rapidly his physicians said late yesterday he probably would not live through the night. He showed unexpected strength, however, and still was breathing this morning.

White is 75 years old. He has been in failing health for four months, but refused to leave his work on the supreme bench.

"THANK GOD I AM AN AMERICAN AND LIVE IN THE UNITED STATES!"

We of the United States, do we actually realize how fortunate we are? Nowhere else on earth are people as blessed as are those in this country with the things that make for human comfort and contentment. We live under a form of Government which through the years has proven the best that has been devised by man. Our land is endowed with immeasurable material riches; our soil and climate bring forth crops in abundance; our towns and cities are orderly and sanitary, with well-lit streets, shady parks and flourishing shops; our homes are modern, containing comforts and conveniences which we have long taken for granted; and our food, fuel and transportation resources are not equalled by any other country in the world.

Compare these mighty blessings we enjoy—yet fret and fuss about like a spoiled child—with what peoples of other lands are enduring. Think of the starving millions of the East, and of Russia's desolation and ruin. Think of the incomprehensible poverty, wretchedness and disease prevalent in the Old World. Think of the lawlessness, murder and pillage, the offspring of unstable Governments, and ware which feed on petty racial jealousies and age-long hatreds. Think of the utter devastation of Petrograd, with its chaos, streets fallen in, destroying drains; roads torn up, stores abandoned and buildings wrecked and in decay, transportation facilities all but destroyed, food an afuel almost unobtainable, and with its remaining half million population out of a total of 2,000,000 before 1914 facing want, misery, disease and death.

Such is the picture of conditions not alone in Petrograd and Russia, but duplicated in many respects in Austria and Hungary, and even found in some degree in other European countries. These are undeniable facts reported by men of integrity who have visited those blighted areas. We are not dealing with the cause of such conditions, or attempting to suggest a remedy; but what we would impress upon the people who live in the United States is that they are living in the best place on God's green earth.

Let us feel a keener and deeper love for our country, its laws and customs, which have enable us in the past to so broadly enjoy its manifold blessings and become the outstanding nation of the world in every line of endeavor.

Well may every man, woman and child whose home is here reverently, devoutly, exultantly declare with each dawning of a new day "Thank God, I am an American and live in the United States!" — Manufacturers Record, Baltimore, Md.

A CHAMPION PASSES.

It is not every hen that can fight her way to the top from circumstances of honest poverty and deep obscurity. It has seldom been recorded in the long annals of the chicken tribe that one of these domesticated descendants of the wild cock of the mountains of India wrote her name in the golden book of fame. But Lady Walnut Hill has achieved this distinction.

Upon the unhappy death of this lady her record was emblazoned on the front pages of the newspapers throughout the country, and we were informed that this world's champion white leghorn will have her skin mounted for the University museum, entering the hall of fame with the Siberian Mammoth, Jumbo, and the prehistoric creatures whose bony skeletons astonish us with their weight and proportions.

Lady Walnut Hill is no more. Yet she has left her "footprints on the sands of time," and an example in patient well-doing and tireless industry which should inspire even those two-legged animals who assume such superior airs but do not always boast as much character as this lamented hen.

In her early youth, called her pullet year, she began the serious business of life by producing ninety-four eggs in ninety-four consecutive days. In her brief lifetime of five years and almost a month she laid 876 eggs and had gone to the nest to present the world her eight hundred and seventy-seventh when death intervened, and she was caught away in the conscientious performance of her duty to that reward which is reserved for all good hens.

This world champion knew nothing of the movement for a shorter workday. She had never heard of the limitation of output. She scorned the strike as a weapon. Her day was from dawn to twilight, and her task was her mission, faithfully and honorably done to the glory of the city of Lexington and the University of Kentucky — Lexington Leader.

THE GENTLER SEX PROVES STERN IN JUDGMENT.

Recent events are revealing that woman has all the qualities of a juror possessed by mere man. She is just as positive in her judgment, and as tenacious in maintaining her opinion, as he, and has demonstrated that the line of demarcation supposed to divide the gentler and the sterner sex is a mere imaginary line of supposititious sentimentality. In a major case just concluded in Cleveland the woman foreman of the jury held out stanchly for the first-degree verdict of murder, and the woman jurist presiding, Judge Florence E. Allen, promptly and firmly sentenced the prisoner at the bar to the extreme penalty of death by electrocution.

This is in keeping with the finding of the two women jurors in the Brate murder case recently tried in Cincinnati, when the two women members of the jury stood steadfastly through hours of balloting for a verdict of guilty, as charged against the accused. Like instances are of record throughout the country, significant of the jurisdictional qualifications of this new element of citizenship in the graver matters of the law's enforcement. In this, as in other divisions of civic responsibility under suffrage freedom, woman is furnishing conclusive evidence that in the sterner duties of organized society the courage of conviction is superior to sex limitation.

According to reports, Edsel Ford recently bought for his own personal use a large automobile made in England. No accounting for tastes.

LIFETERMER ESCAPES JACKSON JAIL.

Jackson, Ky., May 16. — When Deputy Jailer Hiram Centers made his rounds Sunday morning at the Breathitt county jail, he discovered that Obie Spicer, serving a life sentence for murder, and Burney Wylie, serving a seven year term, had escaped by sawing out the bars in the window of their cell.

On the previous day Spicer had been playing a banjo in his cell for a long time and it is thought that under cover of the music Wylie, who is an expert mechanic and electrician, had sawed the irons, and then the pair had waited until night and slipped away undetected in the darkness.

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeanne Price

New York. — You can't escape tests by white weighing machines for the use of the women customers are being forced to change the tables printed on the scales. You know those tables—one column giving heights and the other the number of pounds proper for each one. By then you learned that if you are five feet six, you should weigh 145 pounds. Fancy that! It was all right a few years ago. But today! You look for a tailor clever enough to deceive the public if you weigh a pound over 132 at that height. "We certainly had heard enough about those tables," said the manager of one Fifth avenue shop the other day. "We had five letters in one month from customers protesting that we owed it to them to keep up to date on such things. Finally we got new tables made out and I hope we'll have peace." The theory that health demanded all those pounds has been exploded, too. "Women are healthies today than their plumper mothers and grandmothers were," insists Dr. Newman, 286 Fifth avenue, who is a specialist in the matter of making his patients willowy and well simultaneously. "The five foot six woman who weighs 132 is undoubtedly in better shape physically than the 145 pound one of the day before yesterday."

Two hundred thousand men, women and children spent last Sunday at Coney Island. Straw hats and hot dogs were also present to make it a real old-time summer day.

Getting lost 43 times between the ages of three and six is a fairly undisputed record, I believe. It is held by Michael Clementi, of this city where anything can happen. But it's a technical record, only, according to his father. "Lost! That boy couldn't get lost anywhere in this wide world," he exclaimed the other day when the police called him and told him that Michael was lost, but was safe at the 89th precinct station. "I'll come and get him, but he isn't lost any more than you are." When he arrived and they had told him how the child was found weeping at Ninety-sixth street and Fifth avenue, he shook his head. "The police have called me from Bridgeport, Conn., Plainfield, N. J., and half dozen other nearby cities, notifying me that Mike is safely with them—that he was 'lost.' Forty-three times he's been supposed to be lost, but he always knew where he was and how to get there." Then the father took his precocious son's hand to lead him home once more. He started to ask the policemen the shortest route to their home. "Come on, pop, I'll show you the way," said Michael.

"Well I've been reading about it and it says that Japan says she is going to have the island of Yap no matter if we were supposed to get equal rights there," said Jack.

"Yes and I heard a friend of Daddy said that England agreed with Japan, and that all of those countries over there were against the United States," commented Ruth.

"Now you kiddies don't know your current history very well if that is what you think and believe," said Uncle Ted who had been listening.

"I'll admit that the relations between the United States and Japan, according to some, have not been the best since Japan insisted upon taking charge of the island of Yap. Of course, this little island and the talk about it is only one thing in the big accumulation of troubles throughout the world in which the United States is more or less interested since the Great War. But we have a new President and a new Secretary of State—two things you seem to have forgotten.

When it comes to getting toward real peace in the world and stopping all the trouble between countries growing out of the war, I know that more has been done in the last few weeks than in all the rest of the time since November, 1918, put together.

"There are some who do not feel that every move of the President and Secretary Hughes has been the best but the results are what counts and those results are promoting the cause of permanent peace. The other day Senator at Harrison tried to discredit Mr. George Harvey, the new ambassador to Great Britain, by a speech in the Senate which was not only poor taste but might cause grave misunderstandings in England if the English people believed what he said. After that he made other remarks, as did other Democrats, that the Harding administration has been forced to follow the policy of Woodrow Wilson and that eventually we would enter the world club plan."

"Gee, that can't be," said Jack.

"It not only can't be but won't be and no one knows this better than the men who have fought the world club.

If we were going into the world club how could Col. George Harvey be our representative in the Supreme Council where will sit and listen? Col. Harvey who hates the world club plan in every way would be the last man to agree to anything that would even recognize the world club. Of course that is ridiculous and our Democratic friends and newspapers know that.

"But to get back to the success of President Harding's moves so far as Europe is concerned, we find that instead of more trouble or misunderstanding with Japan, there is every reason to believe that Japan wants to get rid of everything that might cause trouble with us. The other countries feel the same way in the Yap matter—that the fact we have complained about Japan having control of Yap was within our rights. And another thing kiddies, if England and Japan agree to our wishes about Yap we can naturally expect them to agree to what we think should be done in the Orient. I understand that Japan has been advised by Great Britain to agree to the wishes of America regarding both Shantung and Yap."

"With reciprocity between the United States and Canada an accomplishment, fact prices of farm products would be hammered down still further, many farms would be abandoned for mere grazing purposes, and American agriculture as an industry would receive a blow from which it would not soon recover. There is time for Congress to repeal the act of 1911 before Canada has an opportunity to ratify it, and the forthcoming tariff bill offers a convenient vehicle for the repeal provision. Why not end the controversy by wiping the objectionable statute from both Shantung and Yap."

"Another thing that seems to me to be coming closer and closer as a result of the splendid work of President Harding is disarmament. Of course, I don't for one minute think we should stop building ships and training a fair sized army just because a part of the world is talking about getting rid of fighting materials. But when taxes keep getting higher and higher as they have been in Japan they sure have good reason to talk about at least cutting down the amount of money to be spent on great fleets of battleships."

"There will be a lot of talk back and forth across the ocean for some time to come in order to get the politics of the world straight, but you both can just remember that that matter how the details look — no matter how much criticism is made of the way in which things are accomplished—that President Harding and Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes have in the short space of a few weeks shown the world that America is again a government by law and that she means to keep her place in the world.

depending that which is justly hers and demanding it in a way that shows we mean business. For the first time in years Europe realizes that a human sits in the White House at Washington, backed by many he-men advisors and that he listens to their advice because he knows it is SOUND.

Once a course is decided upon it is told the world in language that anyone can understand and not in terms that can be read a dozen different ways," said Jack.

"In other words the world knows we mean business!"

"Hurrah for a real peace," yelled Jack.

REPEAL CANADIAN RECIPROCITY.

Washington, D. C. — Calling attention to the fact that the Canadian reciprocity act, passed in 1911, is still on our statute books, but has never been ratified by the Canadian parliament, the Republican Publicity Association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., declares: "A few days ago a proposal was introduced in that body for its endorsement, but was defeated by a narrow margin. It is said that had it taken the form of a direct resolution, instead of an amendment to another measure, it would have carried.

There is said to be a possibility that the political faction now in control of the Canadian government will be overthrown at the next election and those who favor reciprocity come into power. If that situation presents itself the farmers of the United States and Canada may be sending their goods to each other's market sooner than they expected.

"Is that a prospect that the American farmer looks forward to with pleasure? The Canadian reciprocity act was passed by a Democratic House and a Republican Senate at a special session of Congress called by a Republican President. It is generally accepted as Republican legislation; nevertheless, some of the Republican leaders of Congress were bitter in their opposition to it, claiming that it transgressed the fundamental protection policy of Republicanism.

"The fact is that the farms of Canada have been developed to such an extent that their products far exceed the domestic demand, and either the planting must be curtailed or a big export market developed. With free entry into the United States the problem of the Canadian farmer is solved at once, and he will exert himself to raise and send to this country every pound or bushel of surplus foodstuffs that his land will produce. The effect on the American farmer is easy to see. It is always difficult, and at the present time impossible, to find a domestic market for the disposal of all of our own agricultural products. The American farmer is described by his friends as the most unfortunate of creatures, inasmuch as most of his products in recent months have been sold at a loss.

"With reciprocity between the United States and Canada an accomplishment, fact prices of farm products would be hammered down still further, many farms would be abandoned for mere grazing purposes, and American agriculture as an industry would receive a blow from which it would not soon recover.

There is time for Congress to repeal the act of 1911 before Canada has an opportunity to ratify it, and the forthcoming tariff bill offers a convenient vehicle for the repeal provision.

Why not end the controversy by wiping the objectionable statute from both Shantung and Yap?"

"Another thing that seems to me to be coming closer and closer as a result of the splendid work of President Harding is disarmament. Of course, I don't for one minute think we should stop building ships and training a fair sized army just because a part of the world is talking about getting rid of fighting materials.

“Turn on the light!”

IN halls of science; in little homes; in great industrial buildings; along city streets; in colleges; on battle-fields; in parks; in offices; in hospitals; in palaces; up and down the roadways of the country; in the rooms of rich man or poor man—turn on the light!

It all seems so simple! A button pressed—a switch turned—and then: dark corners gone, hours utilized, beauty enjoyed, fortunes made, lives saved!

“Turn on the light!”

Did your thoughts ever go behind those words? Did they ever go back to the huge dams and water turbines, where water power is used, or the stupendous steam boilers? Or back to the turbines, engines and generators, wires of high-tension transmission lines and the innumerable smaller wires, all of which, in a sort of endless chain, link up with your reading lamp?

Electricity could not be the efficient public servant it is were it not for the foresight of some 1,450,000 thrifty American citizens who put their savings into the securities of the electric light and power industry.

There are still millions of homes in the United States without electric service, and which eventually will have it. It is authentically stated that the United States needs 1,500,000 additional homes, 500,000 additional factories, 5,000 public schools, 5,000 churches, 60,000 apartment buildings and 15,000 theaters. These, too, mean electric service. There are 150,000 pending applications for power by existing or new industrial plants desirous of utilizing electricity.

The wages of capital in this industry are regulated. These wages must be fixed fairly upon the basis of what it costs to buy money, for money must be invested in the industry to meet the public demands as they are made.

You and your community need this industry and it should receive your support.

NATURE TELLS YOU

As Many a Maysville Reader Knows
Too Well.

When the kidneys are weak. Nature tells you about it. The urine is nature's index. Infrequent or too frequent passage. Other disorders suggest kidney fail. Doan's Kidney Pills are for disordered kidneys. Ask your neighbor. Maysville people testify to their worth.

Charles Kenner, retired farmer, 81 Wood street, Maysville, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills several different times within the last few years and never had them fail to do me good. My kidneys were in a mighty bad shape the first time I used them. The secretions I passed were bloody and burned terribly. My back kept me in misery during that time. The attack lasted and I was feeling generally run down. I went to Wood & Son's Drug Store and got a couple boxes of them. This medicine reached my case at once and cured me up in good shape. I have always relied upon Doan's ever since. I use a few now and then to regulate my kidneys and they never fail me."

Words of the most superlative degree and descriptions of the most laudatory nature have not been found to express in adequate terms this wonderful picture play of love and adventure such as only a Griffith, a master, may reveal in all its beauty, strength and excitement. Critics have pronounced it one of the most remarkable productions that has ever come from this master hand and fans everywhere have reveled in its beauty and excitement and heralded it as a production comparable only with the most wonderful that has come to the screen in the past few years.

It theme, primarily, is an unusual interest, interwoven with side lifts of intricate complications that add materially to its action, its heart interest, its suspense and its ultimate justification, for it is an unusually dramatic story of the wonderful love of a daughter for her heart-broken father, who being hounded to the very end of the world, dares to plan the undoing of the man who is desirous of bringing ultimate disgrace upon the very light of her heart and soul and unhappiness to her every thought.

Not one woman in ten thousand would do what this daughter dared to do to save her father. Not one person of her sex in many times that number would have clung to the heart strings of her parents, through their many trials and tribulations, with every atom of the strength of her frail body as did this girl of nature, this child of all that was good and true and wholesome. Gratitude is the rosemary of the heart, but greater love has no man than they that would willingly give their life to save another. Yet this girl, without the knowledge of her father, plotted to give away all that was near and dear to her, even to the extent of her own life, to save for him a few more happy days on earth.

The development of this theme Mr. Griffith has handled in a most masterly manner. His players, headed by Richard Barthelmess and Carroll Dempster are par-excellent in this production. The settings are exquisite wonder of exterior beauty and interior perfection. The whole is a creation of Griffith perfection. It is proving to be an achievement of splendid merit everywhere and has gathered for Mr. Griffith untold praises, adding more laurels to the many achievements he has accomplished during the past ten years.

THE EFFICIENT WOMAN

We hear a great deal nowadays about the efficiency of women. In the novels of fifty years ago, who ever heard a woman praised for her executive ability, force, and energy, in the sense that it is used today? The frail, delicate, helpless ideal of womanhood has passed away. How is it possible to measure up to the ideals of modern womanhood? In the first place, we must keep our bodies in the best possible condition.

Thousands of women have succeeded through daily baths, exercise in the fresh air, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the first sign of female weakness.

Washington, D. C., May 17.—Adhering to its policy of rewarding meritorious members of its enlisted personnel with commissions, the United States Marine Corps will open an officers' training school in or near Washington this summer, to fill over a hundred vacancies in the commissioned personnel of the corps.

During the war more than 800 enlisted men were commissioned in this country and France. The highest rank so far attained by an enlisted man who received his commission as a reward for meritorious service is that of a senior colonel.

The order recently issued by the Major General Commandant specifies that no non-commissioned officer will be considered for such advancement who shall have had less than one year's service in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps, of which not less than six months shall have been in the Marine Corps. Only men between the ages of 21 and 27 years will be considered.
